

America's Birthday: The Declaration of Independence

This coloring page introduces young learners to the founding of America through a simplified illustration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It helps students visualize this important historical moment while developing fine motor skills.

Instructions:

Color the picture using crayons or colored pencils. Think about what colors might have been used in clothing during this time. Read the learning facts with a parent or teacher.

Coloring Guide:

Founding Fathers:

The men wearing colonial clothing

Declaration of Independence:

The important document on the table

First American Flag:

The flag with 13 stars in the background

Independence Hall:

The building where they met

Image Description:

An easy-to-color illustration of the Continental Congress signing the Declaration of Independence. The scene shows several founding fathers gathered around a table with a large document. John Hancock is shown with a quill pen signing the document. An American flag with 13 stars is displayed in the background. The illustration has bold, clear lines appropriate for young children to color.

Coloring Image: America's Founding Symbols

This coloring page features George Washington, the Liberty Bell, the 13-star American flag, and Independence Hall.

Did You Know?

- The Declaration of Independence was signed in 1776.
- John Hancock wrote his name very large on the document.
- The Declaration of Independence helped America become its own country.
- The first American flag had 13 stars for the 13 original colonies.
- July 4th is celebrated as America's birthday.

Target Skills: Historical awareness, Fine motor skills, Color recognition, Following instructions