An excerpt from Hillsdale College describing their Reading List which we incorporate into our 'Read Aloud' and 'Story Time' segments:

"Hillsdale Academy teaches fiction and historical literature in these respective collections because they offer students models of human virtue. (In these stories), students will become acquainted with men and women of outstanding character. Children mature spiritually, intellectually and socially from such opportunities. The growing child gains inestimable benefits from sharing in the lives of others by reading literature replete with acts of heroism, compassion, self-discipline and faith.”

“Anxiously we look round for collective measures, thereby reinforcing the very mass-mindedness we want to fight against. There’s only one remedy for the leveling effect of all collective measures, and this is to emphasize and increase the value of the individual.” -Carl Jung, Civilization in Transition

A growing ability to use language with power and grace is one of the surest marks of educated men and women and one of the surest safeguards against the loss of liberty.” - Hillsdale College

“The seeds from which a nation’s future grows are planted and nourished in the education and formation of its citizens.”

“The United States begins on a certain day, July 4, 1776, with a statement of the meaning of the nation and its purposes.”

“Children should be educated and instructed in the principles of freedom.” - John Adams

“The serious pursuit of a classical education shows us that the life of the mind and the existence of education itself depend on the existence of civilization—not to mention political order, security, and freedom of thought.” -

One man with courage is a majority. - Thomas Jefferson

The boisterous sea of liberty is never without a wave. - Thomas Jefferson

“For America Founders, widespread public education was the key to equal opportunity, to individual improvement, and to the pursuit of human happiness.” - We Still Hold These Truths p.234

Highly socialized homeschoolers are more successful.

A meaningful, human connection with a teacher is an invaluable benefit to a child.

We believe mentors are a necessary attribute of the traditional school model that homeschoolers can greatly benefit from.

Letter from the Browns

Choosing to homeschool our own children gave us more time to spend together and an opportunity to shape their education according to our standards.

American Seekers Academy uses inspiration from the Classical model of education, which we believe offers the surest, time-tested and most complete schooling that can be used to complement a child's education at home. American Seekers Academy is inspired by Hillsdale Academy and their charter school development plan. With this example in mind, ASA was designed by homeschool parents who needed more than the average co-op could provide.

-The Browns (homeschooling since 2020)

BRIEF OVERVIEW

At our drop off homeschool co-op, American Seekers Academy, we have a shared goal in helping to make homeschooling a success for the whole family. Our program is inspired by the Classical model of education and includes the Liberal Arts subjects pertaining to the Trivium and Quadrivium. We outsource several of the curriculums along with the general outline of course lesson plans. We refer to many reputable sources for our materials and lesson plans such as Hillsdale College, Literacy Essentials, IEW, WOL, Dimensions Math, PragerU, MENSA and Tuttle Twins. We also incorporate original, proprietary works such as worksheets, lessons and projects into our scope and schedules. Included in the 10 week program are student placement assessments and a Student Tracker that both mentor and parent have access to monitor both the progress of the child and to serve as an indicator for areas that could be improved upon at home.

We are a universal co-op that welcomes families from all faith traditions. Lessons may include examining the role of the Creator in our founding documents and as contained within the design of our government. We do not teach religious doctrine nor do we exclude the word God from our lessons pertaining to the relationship and role God plays in our American founding, history, and within the context of philosophy, mathematics and scientific discovery and debate. There is no holiday time off during our 10 week sessions. Students will observe American holidays and learn about International holidays in class as they occur except for Halloween depending on the location and their rules.

Our program as a whole teaches socialism leads to communism and why capitalism and liberty go hand in hand. "The Truths We Still Hold," by Matthew Spalding and "Land of Hope," by Wilfred McClay are both required readings for our Mentors as general guides on American history. Please familiarize yourself with these books at your pace and ask for clarification regarding any topics or subject matter.

We hope that your family thoroughly enjoys this structured educational routine and social space we are proudly establishing together. The role of the Mentor is based on their experience and overall ability to inspire and encourage their students, improvise lessons and activities when necessary and to help administer the policies required of the American Seekers Academy. Mentors must be effective at assisting students to perform their best academically. We aim to strongly influence the improvement and overall growth in the areas of reading and writing, civics and self governance.

You know your child best, their likes and dislikes, natural abilities and inclinations. Please let the mentors and coordinators know if you have any suggestions. Always give us your honest feedback as we continue to grow and develop this unique homeschooling experience for everyone.

OUR MISSION

We are aiming to provide homeschool families access to a private, in-person classical education that guarantees parents' right to choose what is best for their child. Our drop off program helps make homeschooling a success for the whole family and cultivates civic virtue while preparing students for a life of freedom and intellectual growth.
